LILLIAN N JACKSON

Deceased 2003-10-30 Age 84
Green Valley AZ

Lillian Jackson (August 4 1919 to October 30 2003) was an outfielder who played in the All-American Girls Professional Baseball League. Listed at 5 ft 6 in (1.68 m) 125 lb she batted and threw right-handed. Lillian Jackson was one of the original founding members of the All-American Girls Professional Baseball League in its 1943 inaugural season. Born in Nashville Tennessee Jackson was not involved in sport as a child. She began playing basketball and softball at age 18 while attending Isaac Litton High School. She later took classes at Nashville Business College and played on their softball team where she was spotted by a AAGPBL scout who invited her to the final tryouts of the league at Wrigley Field. Once the final cut was made Jackson and another 59 of the 280 girls who tried out were chosen to become the first women to ever play professional baseball. She was relocated to the Rockford Peaches. Jackson saw little action during her rookie year. She was traded to the expansion Minneapolis Millerettes before the 1944 season. One of her teammates Faye Dancer gained notoriety by her practical jokes on and off the ball field especially on the chaperones. One day Dancer said Jackson ran the bases and the outfield like a "Bird Dog"; and it stuck throughout her career. That season Jackson posted a .201 average a pretty good performance considering it was a dominant pitching league and no batters surpassed .300 on the year. She also scored 23 runs and stole 24 bases in just 58 games. The Minneapolis franchise folded before the 1945 season and was replaced by the Fort Wayne Daisies. In her final game for the Daisies Jackson chased a foul ball into the left field bleachers and caught the ball for the final out of the game falling in the bleachers and splitting her upper lip. Fort Wayne won the game but she paid the price with four stitches to close the lip. In 1946 Jackson moved to Chicago to play in the rival National Girls Baseball League during five seasons before giving up the game. She stayed in Chicago and went to work for Sunbeam Corporation where she became a manager before retiring after 31 years of service. The All-American Girls Professional Baseball League suspended operations after the 1954 season. Then in 1980 former pitcher June Peppas launched a newsletter project to get in touch with friends teammates and opponents that resulted in the leagues first-ever reunion in Chicago in 1982. Starting from that reunion the AAGPBL Players Association was formed five years later and many former players of the defunct league continued to enjoy reunions. Jackson volunteered to help and was elected to the Board of Directors. The association was largely responsible for the opening of Women in Baseball a permanent display at the Baseball Hall of Fame and Museum in Cooperstown New York which was unveiled in 1988 to honor the entire All-American Girls Professional Baseball League. It was not really a well known fact until filmmaker Penny Marshall premiered her 1992 film A League of Their Own which was a fictionalized account of activities in the AAGPBL during its first season. Starring Geena Davis Tom Hanks Madonna Lori Petty and Rosie O'Donnell this film brought many of the real AAGPBL former players began to earn a rebirth of celebrity. Jackson provided advice and assistance to

CLASS of 37

Marshall and the production team before and during the filming process. Lillian Jackson was a longtime resident of Green Valley Arizona where she lived with her dear friend and companion Ruth Heiden. She was a much-loved neighbor and a character: the life of any party. On observing a gorgeous Arizona sunset she might opine in her Tennessee accent "When the mountains turn pink - it's time for a drink!" She died in 2003 in Tucson following a brief illness at the age of 84.

(May 19 1942) An F-4 pursuit reconnaissance plane piloted by Lieutenant Constant Owen Jr age 26 from Tennessee crashed near the top of Turks Head Mountain 25 miles southwest of Denver Lowry Field officials reported today. Apparently the pilot was killed instantly and the plane was demolished. Lieutenant Owen had been missing since taking off on a routine flight. from Lowry Field on Sunday. His parents live near Madison Tennessee. A fire blazing near the top of the rugged peak attracted searchers to the wreckage. The fire was reported last night and a Lowry Field plane circled over the mountain. A search party was sent by automobile and reached the wrecked plane at 3:00 am today. Lowry officials declined to give details of the crash. but said a board was investigating. Owen who was a graduate of University of Tennessee came to Lowry Field from Bradley Field in Connecticut last March. He was commissioned into the Air Corps on November 1 1941 and had 300 hours of flying experience.
