Dear Fellow Alumni,

After a really active fourth quarter, this past quarter has been one of planning for both the immediate and the next few years. This alumni organization exists because of the love we all have for our school and the memories of good friends and good times during our formative years—experiences that have most likely continued to impact us in at least some small way. This alumni organization also exists because of the desire we have to pay it forward—to leave a legacy that will help to provide a good education and meaningful experiences for the youth of today who will be the leaders of tomorrow.

The board planning has revolved around communications, events, and engaging with our partners, as follows:

Regarding communications, our goal is to secure and improve our means of communications with all our alumni regardless of location. I can't brag on our website enough. Just do a search of other high school alumni organizations to see if you can find a website to compare (and if you do, then let us know because we are all about continuous improvement). Our communications committee, headed by Alice Shehane, and Jerry Newman, our webmaster, are always researching and implementing new ideas. Not only that, but the board has also taken it upon themselves to reach out to our alumni from the thirties and forties in more personal ways, through calls and cards, to maintain connection. If you are related to or have knowledge of a classmate from one of these earlier classes, please let me know.

Regarding events, our goal is to have more events at Lions Hall to provide a way for everyone who can to gather to renew and continue friendships, and in many cases to make new friends based on what we all have in common. Our Memorial Day and Veteran's Day events also allow us to honor our veterans and do some outreach in the Inglewood Community. We are continuing to add events. In fact, based on a suggestion received through our Facebook page, the Board is hosting a "Sock Hop" in September. Note that you don't have to wear socks or to hop to attend, but we will have food and music; and for those who do like to dance, have at it!! More info TBA.

Regarding our partners, we continue to look for ways to work with Isaac Litton Middle School (ILMS) and Backfield in Motion (BIM). We recently met with ILMS staff, PTSO reps, and other partners to discuss their needs and how we can more positively interact, and these suggestions are now being considered by the Board. You will be hearing more about this throughout the year.

The reality is that we are not getting any younger. With this in mind, we do have a sense of urgency to do all we can while we can, most especially to impact the youth represented by our partners, ILMS and BIM. Most of what we do involves money, and that is where the bulk of your dues and donations go (aside from maintaining our meeting space), so we hope you will keep them coming. The more donations we receive, the more we can benefit these two fine organizations.

To you who are reading this letter, a tremendous THANK YOU! for your interest in the organization and what we are all trying to accomplish. I look forward to future interactions with some of the best people on the planet—my fellow friends and alumni of Isaac Litton High School.

Spotlight on Alumni: Carl G. Stevens, Class of '42

Carl G. Stevens went to be with Jesus on January 24, 2023, just four days short of his 99th birthday, in Boerne Texas.

Carl was born on January 28, 1924, in Old Hickory, Tennessee to Lulon Ford Stevens and Fannie Lewis Gill Stevens. He was a Dow Jones published author for the college textbook, Selling, and a gifted speaker in demand at conventions all over the world. He was an inductee into the "Speakers Hall of Fame." Carl, who graduated from Vanderbilt University, served in the US Army before marrying the love of his life, Miss Dorothy Jean Stinson, on November 27, 1948.

Carl began his career in shoe manufacturing. It was there he discovered that 4 out of 5 sales were made by one out of 5 salespeople. His intellectual drive to discover why this was true led to the discovery of a required personality trait that could not be taught. In collaboration with Harvard intellectuals and co-authors, it was found that the capacity of empathy (the ability to place oneself in another's shoes while still reserving priority interest) was the trait necessary for a salesperson to be extremely successful. Carl's team created a psychological testing protocol to identify those with the trait.

Carl taught at Universities across the United States about the findings of this research and had speaking engagements, along with Paul Harvey and Norman Vincent Peale, around the World in over 166 countries.

Carl found enormous success in the automotive and insurance industries and also in college sports recruiting, notably with Jackie Sherrill at Texas A & M and Alabama football coach, Paul 'Bear' Bryant. Carl was a mentor and teacher to many, two of whom became decades-long close friends: John Robison of Austin, Texas, and Graham Weston of San Antonio Texas.

Carl and Jean connected with a beloved group of friends in their early marriage who became their "Unfamily".

Known for his keen ability to connect with people, Carl made friends with all he met. He was quick to strike up a conversation and share the wisdom he acquired over many years. Like many other Litton graduates, he excelled and brought honor to our school through his achievements.

Hugh LaFollete, class of 1966, suggested we have a column in each BLAST issue where former Litton students send in a short paragraph/article about their favorite teacher at our wonderful school. His contribution will be in a future issue.

Here are our first selections.

From Kaaren Frazier Andrews, Class of '59:

Mrs. Lillian Long was a great teacher; she had a solid knowledge of English literature and grammar and was expert at explaining things. Her students were impressed with her elegant demeanor and sense of style as well. She was always impeccably groomed; wore simple but fashionable clothes and shoes; never raised her voice; never seemed to lose her patience. However, one sensed an underlying granite expectation of good behavior in her classroom and we all knew that no disrespectful actions would be tolerated. This made an experience I had one day in her class stand out as one that I still shiver over to this day.

Her class was right after lunch, as I recall. I'd been given a piece of gum in the cafeteria and casually put it in my mouth after eating lunch. Without thinking, I walked into Mrs. Long's class still chewing away. Everybody came in and settled down and waited for the class to begin. Mrs. Long was sitting up front at her desk, sorting through some papers. After a minute or two, everything got quiet---then VERY quiet. In a perfectly even, normal tone without raising her voice, Mrs. Long said, "Okay, class, we'll begin our review in a minute just as soon as Kaaren comes up and disposes of her gum in the waste basket next to my desk.

I mean, there was absolutely dead silence. Everybody turned his head and looked at me.

I slowly got up and walked up to the waste basket, feeling every eye in the room boring through me. I took the gum out of my mouth, threw it into the waste basket and walked back to my seat. I was devastatingly embarrassed and humiliated and could sense the snickers that were being swallowed. That was the hardest short walk I ever made. The class began and Mrs. Long never mentioned the incident again. Needless to say, that was the last time I ever chewed gum in any school classroom, even college.

From Mike Riggins, Class of '69:

My favorite teacher was Harvey Lackey. I graduated in 1969, I was in his biology class. I think it was my junior year. I always look forward to going to his class because he made it fun , He had a good sense of dry humor.

From Judy Butler Cline, Class of 1970:

Mrs. Mary Frances Spurlock was passionate about her subject, and she made me love it as well. (10th and 12th grade English.) I remember that she had watched Gone With The Wind many times. She loved Shakespeare and brought back photographs from her visits to Stratford-Upon-Avon that brought his plays and literature to life. Although she was not an easy teacher, I always looked forward to her class.

From KAREN HUFFINE BROWN, CLASS OF 1972:

Miss Frances Rice was dedicated to her teaching job. I could tell that she loved her Home Economics and wanted her students to learn it and love it like she did.

My grandmother was a seamstress and made her living by sewing for other people. She taught me to sew beginning at a young age.

Miss Rice taught us a lot about sewing and cooking – how to set a table properly and I'm sure many other things about home. I still have a biscuit recipe that Miss rice gave us in class.

If You Can Dance, You Have A Chance

By Mickey Collier, Class of '65

Many years ago, 1959, a youngster attended a dance in Fellowship Hall, the basement at Inglewood Methodist Church. He observed, with interest, the cute Jill Hudson dancing with the handsome Donnie Greene. They were doing a dance called the "Bop." They were smiling profusely and seemed to be having a wonderful time. The youngster, me, was greatly impressed.

About a year later, there was a party at the home of Susie (class of '65 and Mike class of '61) Borum. The party was held in a large room above the detached garage. I think it was located on McGavock Pike. It was a scene out of the movie Dirty Dancing. All my heroes were there: Billy Tomlinson, Sandy Baggott, Ray Ward, etc. The hot new song that night was the Peppermint Twist by Joey Dee and the Starlighters. This little five-foot kid was wide eyed. I thought it was time to learn these dances.

Soon after, I heard that several of my classmates were planning to attend dance lessons in East Nashville in an upstairs location above the Western Auto. So our parents would take us there one night per week. I remember Butch Stewart, Janelle Holt, Diane Barr and Darlene Shadden; I think there were about 20 of us.

We learned slow dances, but frankly, we were too young to care about being that close. The cha-cha was ok, however, the Bop was our intended goal. Besides, I was too short to dance with many of my female classmates.

Beginning in my sophomore year, 1962, we were bombarded with new musical groups. The British Invasion, Motown, Beach music, Soul music: all of it was danceable. The Twist, the Hully Gully, the Jerk, the Watusi, the Stroll, the Mashed Potato, the Hitch Hike, the Monkey, the Swim, the Pony and the Boogaloo presented a challenge to teenagers. After all, one must be able to keep up. Then we saw James Brown. Wow! The man could move!

We had a few sock hops at Litton, but there were dances for teens all over the Nashville area. In the summer we could pick a good dance experience almost every night of the week. Skatelane, St. Joseph Church, and the Legion in Madison. The Dog House in Old Hickory. The Beach House in Hendersonville, and a bit later, we had the Uptight Club in Goodlettsville.

Our local Dave Overton with Tommy Sands on the "Five-O'Clock Hop"

Each great band had their following. The Crystals, The Shags, The Knights, The Jaguars, The Anglo Saxons and if you were lucky, The Exotics, or Charlie McCoy and the Escorts.

What a blessing to meet other teens from different schools. Many of them became life-long friends.

In 1968, Uncle Sam decided that I should be in the Philippines. On a beautiful, tropical night, at a thatched roof dance club on the beach, I asked a young English-born Navy brat to dance with me. 55 years later, we are still dance partners. Yes, I took advantage of my chance.

Once upon a time there was a school named "Isaac Litton."
Here are pages from the annual of its first Graduating Class.

YEAR BOOK

ISAAC LITTON HIGH SCHOOL
NASHVILLE, TENNESSEE

Class History

SINCE ours is the first Senior Class of the New Isaac Litton High School, we would like to cherish the memory that it has left a history of noble achievements.

We started as Freshmen at Jere Baxter, which was then a Junior High School. It seemed as if we were starting on a journey. In our Freshman year we thought the journey would be difficult. With the aspirations of high standards and ideals, we took our first steps toward the goal which we were planning to reach. Everyone co-operated in the activities and, especially, with the splendid faculty. New friends were made and they helped to make another step of the journey easier.

At the close of nine months of school, we stopped for a vacation in order that we might not become weary before our destination was reached. After three months had passed we resumed our journey, traveling this time as full-fledged Sophomores and, as the name implies, feeling much wiser than the poor little Freshmen just entering high school. Our Sophomore year did not seem so difficult, because the road seemed to contain fewer knocks and bumps than it had the previous year. Everyone had entered with the determination of doing his best. We were now considered as models by our lower classmen, or at least we wished to be regarded as such by them. School spirit was developed very rapidly among our girls and boys as we became more and more interested in athletics. Perhaps the close of the school found our number diminished by a few members who fell by the wayside.

As we entered the Junior year, our number had been increased so greatly by the Freshmen and the new class of Sophomores that we had completely outgrown our old building. We were the first Junior Class of which our school could boast, so some provisions had to be made for us. Consequently, we entered our third year in the Inglewood Methodist Church, which the congregation was kind enough to let us use temporarily. During this period many of our classes were taught in one room, similar to a Chinese school. Although this manner of learning was rather wearing upon the nerves of both teachers and pupils, we managed to survive. At last, early in October, we were delighted on arriving at school to find that we must make plans to move at once into our new building, which is located on the Gallatin Road. Along with the new building, we also acquired a new name—Isaac Litton High School. We were now offered every opportunity to obtain an education. We began our work in earnest now. At the close of our Junior year, we were both sorry and glad; sorry to leave the school which we had learned to love, but looking forward to coming back the following year as bona fide Seniors.

Thus far having succeeded, we entered the Senior Class full of zeal and ambition. As we reached the end of this journey, it meant that we would depart from many of our friends and classmates whom we would never meet again. At least, many of the Seniors had prepared themselves for professions and occupations to enable them to go out upon Life's Highway with hope and confidence.

We, as Seniors, know that all happy moments must have an ending. Our fondest hope is that we may never fail to exert an influence upon you and to give you an inspiration to cherish high ideals and to live pure lives that our dear Alma Mater will be proud to claim.

Remembering Our History – Honoring our Legacy

Recently, Harvey Fischer, (70),
Past ILAA President,
presented a check to the ILAA Board from his PAC as the lobbyist for Farmers Employee Agent PAC.

Have you considered how you can contribute to the legacy of our wonderful high school?

First, you can make a monetary contribution to the ILAA right now.

Second, you can ask your family to include your attendance at Isaac Litton High School in your obituary.

Third, you can bequeath a donation to our Alumni Organization in your will or by instructing your family to make a contribution to the ILAA.

None of us are getting any younger and, thanks to the “Powers that Be,” there will be no more Litton Lions, except through the Middle School. Our support of that great school, Backfield in Motion, and other community activities will help the memory of BIG BLUE live on when we are all gone.

Your ILAA Executive Board is now working on plans to assure that our LEGACY will continue when we are all gone.

Please consider doing whatever you can afford to keep our names in the hearts and minds of generations to come.

Thank you, ISAAC LITTON HIGH SCHOOL ALUMNI, for your support.
